

Enhance Protection & Personal Safety

As your "next" normal takes shape, it's important to make sure your employees and visitors understand how to correctly use Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) and sanitization chemicals – and in which situations – to protect the health and wellbeing of themselves, their coworkers and the people they interact with. It is essential that they benefit from the right equipment and chemicals to protect themselves.

Sodexo helps facilitate the success of your protection and prevention efforts with thoughtful training and promotional materials that can be used in conjunction with your established workplace protocols. We will work with you to develop the messaging, strategy and execution you need to shape proper behaviors, re-assess your service scope and supply-chain and manage the overall organizational changes required to build a healthier future for your business.
