Safeguard Personal Health with Touchless Technology

Viruses, bacteria, and other infectious germs can be spread as people use commonly shared fixtures and amenities including faucets, water fountains and filling stations, and bathroom fixtures. With frequent, repeated use through the course of any given day, these high-touch surfaces can be challenging to keep clean and disinfected.

Sodexo can help you protect the health of your employees, students and visitors by integrating touchless technology throughout your facilities. In conjunction with physical distancing and other safety measures, these innovative devices can significantly reduce infection transmission risks while enhancing personal convenience.

The CDC recommends not touching public water dispensing stations with uncovered hands.

Touchless technology provides hands-free operation for enhanced safety and convenience.

Improve Protection & Productivity

In the wake of COVID-19, touchless technology is becoming an important way to weave health safeguards into everyday routines without disrupting productivity. Partnering with Sodexo to install this innovative equipment is a smart way to improve productivity and user satisfaction.
